Introduction

It has been said that there is less written on Arkansas government and politics than on any other state. I agree and I have been concerned about the lack of materials on these subjects.

Many people contact this office requesting information about election results and voter turnout. This information must be extracted from election abstract sheets and various files which we maintain. It has been generally inconvenient to obtain.

This publication is one of several which I hope will begin to correct the problems of availability and accessibility. It is designed to provide accurate information on federal, state and district races for the primaries and general election each election year.

This work has been made possible through the use of capable college and university interns who research for us, receive academic credit themselves and provide a worthwhile public service.

I hope you enjoy it.

Sincerely,

Paul Riviere

PRESIDENCY

In the election of 1976, presidential primaries were held for the first time in Arkansas. Both the Democrats and the Republicans conducted primaries to determine their parties' presidential preferences.

Four candidates entered Arkansas' Democratic primary seeking the presidential nomination: Jimmy Carter, George Wallace, Morriss Udall and Henry Jackson. Jimmy Carter of Georgia easily secured the nomination with 62.6% of the vote. His closest challenger was George Wallace, who garnered only 16.5%. Udall polled 7.5% and Jackson, 1.9%.

The Presidential Race of the Arkansas Republican Primary drew two candidates, Ronald Reagan and the incumbent President, Gerald R. Ford. Though Ford went on to secure the national nomination, Reagan was, by far, Arkansas' Republican choice. He secured 63.4% of the vote, compared with 35.1% for Ford. Reagan led in all four Congressional districts, with 64.6% in the First District, 62.9% in the Second, 62.2% in the Third, and his strongest District, the Fourth, with 74.6% of the vote. Of the seventy-five (75) counties in Arkansas, Ford was only able to carry three: Madison, Monroe and Newton.

In the General Election held on November 2, two men, Tom Anderson and Eugene McCarthy, waged campaigns for the presidency as write-in candidates.

Arkansas' Presidential election was won easily by Jimmy Carter, who secured 64.9% of the vote. President Ford carried only three counties in Arkansas (Baxter, Benton and Sebastian), while polling 34.9%. Neither McCarthy or Anderson were able to secure even 1% of the total vote.

UNITED STATES CONGRESS

District One

Bill Alexander was the only candidate to file for the Democratic nomination and Harlan "Bo" Holleman, the only Republican nominee, so no primary election was necessary in the First District Congressional Race.

In the General Election, Alexander of Osceola, easily defeated Holleman, winning all twenty-one counties in the district and 68.9% of the vote. This assured Alexander of a fifth term in the United States Congress.

District Two

The primary of May 25, 1976 found six candidates vying for the Democratic nomination for the Second Congressional District. Attorney General Jim Guy Tucker avoided a runoff by polling 51.8% of the vote. His closest contender was Bill Clark with 14.2%; then C. V. Ford with 12.9%, Cal Ledbetter with 10.8%, Bob McHenry with 7.2% and Ed Gran with 3.1%.

In the Republican Primary, James Kelly and Sherman "Pat" Bremmer were the candidates. Kelly secured the nomination with 62.6% of the vote.

In the General Election, Tucker and Kelly were joined by write-in candidate Joe McNew. Tucker was the overwhelming victor, receiving 86.38% of the vote and winning all nine counties. Kelly received 13.6%, with McNew able to poll only eight votes.

Office of the Governor

The Governor of the state of Arkansas can influence the legislative process in the state in four ways: veto, special sessions, messages, and the prestige of the office. The veto power of the Governor can be used to disapprove any bill passed by both Houses of the Legislature, including appropriation of money. If a bill is presented to the Governor during a session of the legislature, he must act on the bill within five days (Sundays excepted) or it automatically becomes law. If a bill is placed on the Governor's desk during the last five days of a session of the General Assembly, the Governor has twenty days in which to approve, veto or file an objection with the Secretary of State. Such an objection during this time kills the bill absolutely. If the General Assembly is in session, it takes a simple majority to override a veto by the Governor. The Governor has the sole power to call a special session of the legislature, and when he makes such a call, he must state clearly the item or items which he desires legislative action on. Once the legislature has dealt with the items specified by the Governor, and with a two-thirds vote of the members, the General Assembly may take up other matters, but the session must end within fifteen days.

The judicial powers bestowed upon the Governor by the Constitution of Arkansas range from the granting of "reprieves, commutations of sentence, and pardons after conviction", and "remitting of fines and forfeitures" (Article VI, Sec. 18), to the extradition of fugitives to another state. Only in the creation of vacancies by death or resignation of a Supreme Court member, does the Governor have the power to appoint persons to that court. If such a vacancy does occur, the person who is appointed by the Governor is not eligible to run for the position when that position comes up for election.

The Constitution of the state of Arkansas states in Amendment 6, Section 2 that the "executive power shall be vested in a Governor", but it also places executive power in the offices of all state elected officials. Therefore, even though the Governor is seen as being the major actor in the Executive Department, the Constitution clearly restricts his power and therefore reduces the likelihood of a powerful governor emerging within the state. The only authority that the Governor has over the other Executive Offices, is provided for in Article VI Section 7 of the Constitution, which states that the Governor may "require information in writing on any subject relating to the duties of their respective offices."

The primary responsibility for the administration of the state rests in the Governor's Cabinet. This Cabinet is made up of the eighteen department directors who advise the Governor about the various needs and services of their departments. The Cabinet also aids in formulation of policies and procedures and helps to implement them.

Constitutional Requirements for Seeking the Office

In Art. VI, Sec. 5 of the Arkansas Constitution, it states that no person shall be elected to the office of Governor unless that person is thirty (30) years of age and has been a resident of the state of Arkansas for a seven year period. The requirements of Lieutenant Governor are the same as the above mentioned for the Governor. Both offices are for two-year terms.

Election: 1976

In the Democratic Primary in May, four men sought the party nomination for the office of Governor: Governor David Pryor of Camden, seeking his second term as Governor, Frank Lady of Jonesboro, Jim Lindsey of Fayetteville and John "Tuffy" Chambers of Higden. Pryor carried all but five counties in the state (Craighead, Cross, Madison, Poinsett and St. Francis) and was able to poll 59.5% of the popular vote. Pryor's nearest contender, Lindsey, polled 32.5% of the statewide vote, followed by Lady with 7% of the vote and Chambers with 1%.

Leon Griffin and Joseph Weston were the gubernatorial candidates in the Republican Primary. Griffin won the nomination with 57.2% of the vote. Weston carried twelve counties and gathered 42.8% of the popular vote.

In the General Election held on November 2, 1976, Governor Pryor and Leon Griffith were joined by Thaddeus Honeycutt, a write-in candidate. Governor Pryor was the overwhelming victor, carrying all seventy-five counties and polling 83.2% of the vote.

Office of the Secretary of State

The Office of the Secretary of State was created by the 1874 Constitution as a branch of the Executive Department and was originally created for the purpose of communication with the various state governments in the nation and with the Federal Government. The duties of the Secretary of State are many and diverse. He must send the names of those duly elected to Congress to the proper officials in Washington D.C. He reports the vote of the State's Electoral College delegates. He gives assistance to the Federal Bureau of Census in compiling data. He serves as the custodian of the State's Official Records, which include the Acts of the General Assembly, Proclamations of the Governor, the rules and regulations of the various State Agencies, and records of the domestic and foreign incorporated companies within the state.

The Secretary of State is the chief election officer of the State. He receives political practice pledges and the campaign expenditure accounts of public office seekers. He publishes amendments and initiated or referred acts. He certifies the names of all qualified candidates and the measures to County Boards of Election Commissioners for inclusion on the ballot. He also canvasses and announces all election returns in statewide and district elections.

The Secretary of State also files trademarks and trade names. He records the official bonds of state officials and keeps the legislative journals. He is responsible for keeping records on the incorporations of cities and towns. He issues and records the commissions of county, district and state officials, as well as notary public commissions, justices of the peace, CPA certificates and contractors licenses. He publishes the Arkansas Register, and he microfilms all state records for space conservation and preservation of the documents.

The Secretary of State is a member of the Arkansas Revenue Building Commission, the Arkansas Justice Building Commission, Board of Municipal Corporations, Arkansas State Capitol Zoning Commission, Arkansas State Building Services Council, Arkansas State Board of Apportionment, Arkansas State Records Committee, and Arkansas State Board of Election Commissioners.

In addition to the above mentioned responsibilities, he is the legal custodian of the State Capitol building and the Capitol grounds.

Election: 1976

The Democratic Primary of May found four candidates filing for the office of the Secretary of State: Winston Bryant of Malvern, Frank Henslee of Pine Bluff, Robert Brier of Little Rock and Ken Johnson, of Little Rock. Though Bryant had polled the largest number of votes, he was unable to secure a majority of the total vote cast, carrying only 38.7% of the vote, barely ahead of Henslee with 36%, and it became necessary to have a runoff to decide the winner.

In the Runoff held on June 8, 1976, Bryant polled 170,317 compared to Henslee, who received 153,980 votes. Bryant, with 52.5% of the popular vote, became the Democratic nominee for the Secretary of State position and was unopposed in the General Election held in November.

OFFICE OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

The office of the Attorney General was created as a part of the Executive Department of the State of Arkansas by Article VI, Sec. 1, of the Constitution of 1874.

The Attorney General is the legal representative of all state officials as well as of the State. He maintains and defends the interests of the State in all matters before the United States Supreme Court and all other Federal Courts, and is the legal representative of all state officers, boards and commissions in all litigations where the interest of the State is involved.

The Litigation Division is the civil trial branch of the office. Litigation Division attorneys prosecute and defend civil suits in behalf of the State and its agencies and departments in both State and Federal Courts.

The Criminal Justice Division represents the State when a criminal case is appealed to the Arkansas Supreme Court or when the State is involved in a criminal case in Federal Court. It represents the Department of Public Safety (the State Police), the Department of Corrections, and the Juvenile Training School Board. Criminal Justice Division attorneys prepare Attorney General's opinions relating to criminal matters.

The Opinions Division carries out the Attorney General's statutory duty of rendering his opinion to state officials, heads of agencies, members of the General Assembly, county election commissioners, and prosecuting attorneys upon legal questions concerning the official action of such officials or the discharge of their duties. As a public service, and when time and workload permit, the Opinions Division also renders unofficial opinions to local officials about interpretation of state statutes or matters of public importance. Although this Division attempts to answer all correspondence, it is not authorized to render opinions to private citizens about their personal legal problems.

The State Agencies Division provides legal advice and assistance on a continuing basis to most state agencies, boards, commissions, and departments concerning the performance of their duties. This includes assistance in drafting and promulgating rules and regulations, investigating alleged violations of such rules and regulations, and conducting administrative hearings.

The Consumer Protection Division was established in the Office of the Attorney General by Act 92 of 1971. This Division promotes consumer education programs throughout the State, investigates violations of laws enacted for consumer protection, enforces the law against deceptive sales practices and misrepresentation, and recommends needed changes in the law to the General Assembly. The Consumer Protection Division is authorized to investigate violations of the Consumer Protection Act and to bring legal action when necessary.

Election 1976:

Three men sought the office of Attorney General in the Democratic Primary held on May 25, 1976. Bill Clinton, Clarence Cash and George Jernigan, Jr., made up the field of candidates for the office. In the election, Clinton was able to sweep the state, carrying sixty-nine counties compared with two for Cash and four for Jernigan. Clinton received 55.6% of the total vote cast in the election, followed by Jernigan with 25.2% and Cash with 19.2%. Clinton was unopposed in the General Election in November.

ARKANSAS SUPREME COURT

The Supreme Court was established by the Constitution of 1836, and continued by the state's later constitutions, as the court to which all decisions of courts of general jurisdiction may be appealed. The Supreme Court also has general supervisory power over all lower courts of law and equity.

The Supreme Court is composed of a Chief Justice and six Associate Justices, all of whom are elected at-large in general elections.

Supreme Court Position 1

Chief Justice Carlton Harris of Pine Bluff and Jim Johnson of Conway filed as candidates in the Democratic Primary for the Supreme Court Position 1. In the race, Harris carried the majority of votes in fifty-three counties compared to Johnson, with twenty-two. Harris won the election by polling 59.2% of the total vote cast in the election. Harris was unopposed in the General Election.

Supreme Court Position 7

In the Democratic Primary in May, three men sought the Supreme Court Position 7 nomination: Judge Darrell Hickman of Beebe, John Purtle of Little Rock, and Judge Melvin Mayfield of El Dorado. Hickman carried the primary with fifty-eight counties voting in his favor, followed by Mayfield with thirteen and Purtle with four. Hickman was unable to secure a majority of the total vote cast, with 49.4% of the vote and was forced into a runoff in June with Mayfield. In the Runoff election, Hickman won the Democratic nomination by polling 60.1% of the vote compared to Mayfield's 39.9%. Hickman was not opposed in the General Election of November.

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

The Constitution of 1874 states that, "the legislative power of this state shall be vested in a General Assembly, which shall consist of the Senate and House of Representatives." (Article V, Section 1)

Senate

The Senate is comprised of thirty-five (35) members elected from thirty-five (35) senatorial districts. Senators serve staggered four year terms with one half of the senators elected every two years. The Lieutenant Governor serves ex officio as President of the Senate and is its presiding officer. The Senate elects a President Pro Tempore from its own membership who is second in line of succession to the office of the Governor in the event of death, resignation, or absence from the state of the Governor and Lieutenant Governor. The Secretary of the Senate is the chief executive officer of the Senate. Although not a member of the Senate, the Secretary is elected by a majority of its members.

House of Representatives

The House of Representatives consists of one hundred (100) members elected from eighty-four (84) representative districts. Although most districts are single member districts with one representative, six districts have three at-large representatives and four districts have two at-large representatives. House members serve two-year terms. The House is presided over by the Speaker of the House, who is elected by the members each two years. It is customary for the Speaker to designate a Speaker Pro Tempore to preside in case of the absence of the Speaker. The Chief Clerk is the executive officer of the House and, although not a member of the House, is elected by a majority of its members.

Qualifications

Senators are required to be at least twenty-five (25) years of age; representatives must be at least twenty-one (21). Both senators and representatives must be United States citizens, residents of Arkansas for not less than two years and residents of their districts for not less than one year. The constitution places further restrictions on those who desire to be candidates for the House or Senate:

..."No judge of the supreme, circuit, or inferior courts of law or equity, Secretary of State, Attorney General for the State, Auditor, or Treasurer, recorder, clerk of any court of record, sheriff, coroner, member of congress, nor any other person holding any lucrative office under the United States or this State (militia officers, justices of the peace, postmasters, officers of public schools and notaries excepted), shall be eligible to a seat in either house of the General Assembly. (V,7)

..."No person who now is or shall be hereafter a collector or holder of public money, nor any assistant or deputy of such holder or collector of public money, shall be eligible to a seat in either house of the General Assembly...until he shall have accounted for and paid over all sums for which he may be liable.(V,8)

..."No person hereafter convicted of embezzlement of public money, bribery, forgery or other infamous crime shall be eligible to the General Assembly...(V,9)

..."A member expelled for corruption shall not thereafter be eligible to either house..."(V,12)

Sessions

The General Assembly meets for sixty (60) calendar days every other year. Sessions begin at 12:00 noon on the second Monday of January in odd-numbered years. Regular sessions may be extended indefinitely by a two-thirds vote of the members of both houses. The Governor may call special sessions by proclamation. Those items specified by the Governor must be considered first, but following completion of the Governor's business, the General Assembly may, by a two-thirds vote of both houses, consider other matters, but for no longer than fifteen (15) days. Because state business has become large, special sessions are now routinely called in January or February of the alternate years.

Vacancies

Whenever a vacancy occurs in either house, the constitution directs the Governor to "issue writs of election to fill such vacancies."(V,6)

JUDICIAL DISTRICTS

The general jurisdiction courts are Circuit Courts and Chancery Courts. They are authorized to try major cases and the Circuit Court may hear appeals from courts of limited jurisdiction. There are 20 circuits with a total of 30 Circuit Judges, 29 Chancery Judges and 3 combined Circuit and Chancery Judges.

Circuit Courts

The Circuit Courts handle both civil and criminal cases. These include capital and other felony offenses, as well as the more serious misdemeanor offenses. Felonies are the more serious crimes punishable usually by large fines and/or imprisonment in the state penitentiary, and misdemeanors are less serious offenses punishable by smaller fines and/or imprisonment in the county or city jails.

When a case from a court of limited jurisdiction is appealed to the Circuit Court, the case is tried as if it were a new case (de novo). Circuit Courts are "courts of record," which means that certain formal records are kept and stenographic transcripts are often made. If a case is appealed to the Supreme Court, the Supreme Court uses only these recorded filings, testimony and evidence in reaching its decision, rather than trying the case over again.

Bail is permitted in Arkansas although the amount and conditions are determined by the individual Circuit Judges. Under special circumstances, most judges allow certain accused persons to be freed on their own recognizance. There are a few state laws governing the conduct of bail bondsmen, but in general, the Circuit Judges establish and enforce their own regulations in their own circuits.

Circuit Judges are elected to four-year terms. To be eligible to run, a person must be a qualified voter and at least twenty-eight (28) years of age with a minimum six years of experience in the practice of the law.

Chancery Courts

The Chancery Courts receive cases involving domestic relations (e.g., divorce) matters, land disputes, reciprocal support actions, and other cases in which equitable relief is sought. The judges of these courts of equity are called Chancellors. Chancellors also serve as Probate Judges hearing cases involving wills, guardianships, adoptions, commitments to state mental hospitals, and other similar matters.

Chancellors are elected for six-year terms. To be qualified as a Chancellor a person must be a qualified voter and at least twenty-eight (28) years of age with a minimum six years of experience in the practice of law.

Prosecuting Attorneys

Each judicial circuit has one Prosecuting Attorney who is elected by the people for a two-year term. Prosecuting Attorneys must be United States citizens, learned in the law, and residents of their respective circuits. Their salaries are paid by the state. It is the duty of the Prosecuting Attorney to commence and prosecute actions, both civil and criminal, in which the state or any county in the circuit may be involved. They also defend all suits brought against the state or county in their areas and give legal opinions and advice to all county officials. They serve as legal counsel to the Quorum Courts (the county legislative bodies). They are also responsible for the supervision and the keeping of records in connection with campaign finance disclosure. They may appoint deputies to assist them. Deputies are paid by the counties.

PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS

Proposed Amendment No. 56

This amendment was offered to the voters by the General Assembly. The purpose of the amendment was to limit and establish the salaries of the Constitutional officers and members of the General Assembly; and to establish the method of fixing the maximum salaries of municipal officers. Amendment No. 56 was passed in the General Election by a vote of 441,247 for, as opposed to 235,665 against.

Proposed Amendment No. 57

This amendment was also offered to the voters by the General Assembly. Passage was achieved by a vote of 634,231 for, with 93,277 votes against. Amendment No. 17 permits the exemption of intangibles from personal property taxes, or lowering of the assessment rate.

Proposed Amendment No. 59

Amendment 59 was placed on the General Election ballot by petition of the people as an amendment to Amendment No. 34, "Rights of Labor," to the Constitution of Arkansas: to continue those provisions of Amendment No. 34 which prohibit denial of employment because of membership in, affiliation with, resignation from, or refusal to join a labor union, prohibit any contract which denies employment because of membership in, refusal to join, or resignation from a labor union, and prohibit compelling of the payment of labor organization dues as a condition of employment; but to provide that the foregoing provisions shall not apply if three conditions are met: (a) employees in an existing bargaining unit vote by secret ballot majority vote to remove them in an election conducted by an Arkansas state agency, (b) the affected employer agrees to contract for labor union membership as a condition of employment, and (c) all employees may participate or not participate in labor union meetings and similar activities. Amendment 59 was defeated by a vote of 257,111 for and 465,343 against.

Act No. 1177 of 1975 Extended Session 70th General Assembly

This act provided for the submission to the voters at the 1976 General Election the issue of whether or not a constitution revision convention should be called in Arkansas. Act No. 1177 of 1975 passed by a vote of 314,385 for Constitutional Reform, with 239,491 votes against.
